HUMOR IN THE EYES .- There is probably no part of the physical organization more tender or sensitive than the eye, and when humor one settles on the delicate organs of sight, blindness is sure to follow. There are instances where persons, having become blind, have applied to oculists in vain for relief, the professional gentlemen being ignorant of the hidden cause of the trouble. "Kennedy's Medical Discovery" has effected many cures where the patients were totally blind from the above cause; and we mention the fact at the present time to induce any who may be suffering from any trouble with their eyes to try this wonderful discovery, and not these only, but any who may be troubled with humors of any kind.
